Musicians featured at Hog & Barrel: A Bourbon, BBQ & Bacon Festival

The Jake Bartley Band: The Jake Bartley Band, which formed in Greenwood, features an array of experienced musicians and songwriters who, individually, have performed on the Today Show and the Rachel Ray Show, at the Grand Ole Opry, and at numerous other venues and festivals. The band is led by singer Jake Bartley, and features Andrew Crawford and Matt Miller on bass, guitar and vocals, and Adam Plott on percussion. The band has also added Bill Christmas to play saxophone, creating a fuller sound overall. The Jake Bartley Band's style is a fusion of soul, rock, blues, folk and funk. 3 and Twenty: 3 and Twenty was formed in a home studio in Easley by Adrian Lee and Butch Gibson in January of 2010. In the eleven years since the band was formed, the duo has been focused on telling authentic stories in a way that feels familiar enough that you think you know the artist but unfamiliar enough that their style is truly their own. After years of performing and promoting themselves at a local level, 3 and Twenty has worked their way up to touring regionally and nationally, and has had the opportunity to enhance their songwriting ability with some of the best songwriters in Nashville. While their music could be most simply classified as country, 3 and Twenty mix in pop, R&B, Southern Rock and Hip Hop. Corey Stevenson: Corey Stevenson is an up-and-coming country music artist from Man, West Virginia, whose musical journey led him to put down roots right here in Greenville. After attending the Fine Arts Center, Corey was awarded the largest music scholarship ever granted by Newberry College, and he hasn't looked back. Corey, who counts honky-tonk legends like Waylon Jennings, Merle Haggard, and Johnny Cash among his musical influences, has traveled up and down the East Coast with his band, and has opened for acts such as Kid Rock, Big Smo, Moccasin Creek, Alice Cooper, and 3 Doors Down, among others.
